Perry's Steakhouse, after teasing its famous pork chop deal last week, has chosen a date — it will sell its classic pork chop lunch for 79 cents on May 2.

Starting at 10:30 a.m., the first 100 dine-in guests will receive the meal that includes a pork chop, whipped potatoes and applesauce at all locations, the company said in a Facebook post. This is dine-in only and for people older than 21 years old.

"Perry's is turning back the clock to 1979 when we first opened as a modest butcher shop in Houston, Texas with a one-day-only, #FlashbackFriday event," the post read. "It's our way of saying THANK YOU, for being part of our story."
